Degree programme

A study conducted by the HWR Berlin revealed that specialists in Real Estate Law and Law of Enforcement number amongst the central pillars of the national and international economy. Both Real Estate and other sectors of the corporate economy such as Banking, Insurance and Business Law have constant recruitment needs for highly-qualified graduates.

This Master's degree programme seeks to meet the needs of the Real Estate sector for lawyers with both a theoretical understanding and practical training in the Legal and Economic aspects of the Real Estate sector. The students of this course learn to fill operative, specialist and management positions in this highly-specialist area of Business Law. This degree programme is unique within Germany and its graduates are highly sought-after by major companies in this sector. These prestigious businesses value our graduates' ability to work in a solution-focused fashion to address the legal challenges thrown up by this highly complex sector, and to reach expert solutions tailored to each individual situation. The clear Economics-based focus of the degree programme enables its graduates to apply a sound legal understanding to commercial contexts. Commercial lawyers need a deep specialist knowledge of the legal, commercial and practical issues involved in their chosen sector thereby guaranteeing a warm reception on the job market.

Professional field

This degree not only qualifies its holders for senior positions in the Real Estate sector, but brings a wider level of expertise and management skills when compared to other specialist lawyers. The degree course provides a qualification relevant to both the public and private sector; potential employers include small and medium-sized companies active in the finance and Real Estate market and large-scale companies with their own legal departments.

This includes Real Estate companies, banks, insurance companies, legal companies with a Real Estate and Corporate Law focus, management consultants, insolvency administrators, municipal authorities and Churches.

Degree structure
