Degree programme

The Berlin MBA has been developed for ambitious executives who are keen to address the challenges of responsible management in a global context. The core modules teach basic general management skills - such as marketing, HR, strategy, finance and accounting. The seminars are enriched by the diversity of our students with their different professional experience and backgrounds. Interdisciplinary approaches to problem-solving are formulated, while cross-sector and interdepartmental thinking is developed. You can pursue your individual interests and professional focal points in a variety of ways: when selecting your elective modules, during integrated study visits or when writing your final Master's thesis.

Professional field

The Berlin MBA qualifies graduates with professional experience for international, cross-sector leadership or consultancy roles. Regardless of whether you want to expand your current leadership role, assume management tasks within your company in future or completely change the direction of your professional career, our management training will open up new job and promotion opportunities

Degree structure

The Berlin MBA programme is divided into three sections: traditional general management core modules, specific elective modules and Master's thesis. Individual interests can be pursued in our wide range of elective modules and integrated study visits. The final Master's thesis is designed as a company project and aims to focus on the specific application of the interdisciplinary linking of the content covered on the MBA programme. You will have to demonstrate your understanding of the modules in one or more ways, such as examinations, homework, individual and group presentations
